THE PURPOSE OF THE CHALLENGE

The average Utah traveler covers a distance of 298 miles per week. Yet, only 25 percent of Utah travel is from commuters. This means that all drivers directly contribute to the pollution that affects our air quality. In fact, according to the Department of Air Quality, if Wasatch Front drivers were to park their vehicles one day per week, emissions would decrease by 6,500 tons per year.

The goals of the Clear the Air Challenge are to eliminate vehicle trips and miles traveled on Utah's roadways between July 1st to 31st.
